

Merapoh Conservation Project Manager

Fuze Ecoteer Outdoor Adventures Sdn Bhd

Role

As the Merapoh Conservation Project Manager you will be in charge of leading the project in Merapoh. You will live in a rented flat in Merapoh with your intern team and short term paying volunteers. Your fieldwork site will be in the Sungai Yu Wildlife Corridor which connects, with continuous forest, Taman Negara to the Titiwangsa Mountain range.

The project has 2 focuses. Your main focus will be on the conservation of the forests and supporting the local Batek group. There will be a teacher who focuses on the education and community side of the project, though you will be expected to help out.

The new direction of the project is to document the arboreal animals and the flora of the Sungei Yu Wildlife corridor. The purpose of the documentation is to build a key list of species which can provide other parties with supportive evidence for the full protection of the Sungei Yu Wildlife Corridor. You will document locations of known species using local knowledge from but also other research methods. You will also be expected to create hotspot maps of key species and fruiting plants such as the Kedongong tree.

You will be expected to be in the forest most days on day trips and weekly overnight camps with the Batek women. You must want to support and learn from the Batek.

The project is funded by paying short term volunteers and also school groups and occasionally corporate groups. You MUST want to help lead these groups as well as conduct your research,

Fuze Ecoteer are looking for rainforest conservation focused people BUT who are also self-directed learners, who want to be with people, who are entrepreneurial and driven to expand their project, at the right time. Plus you must also want to manage and lead a team of interns and volunteers to achieve the objectives of the project.
